adaface

Product Designer Job Description template

Product Designer Job Description Template/Brief

As a product designer, you will be responsible for the design of products from start to finish. This includes researching, conceptualizing, and creating prototypes.

We are looking for a product designer to work on a variety of digital products. The right candidate will have a strong portfolio that showcases their ability to design intuitive, user-friendly interfaces and interactions. they will be a strategic thinker who can take high-level concepts and turn them into detailed designs. They will also be a excellent communicator who can work with cross-functional teams to bring their designs to life.

Product Designer Job Profile

A Product Designer is responsible for the design and development of products. He/she works with engineering, marketing and sales teams to ensure that the products are competitive and meet the needs of the customers. The job involves market research, product planning, concept development, design, prototyping, testing and support during production.

Reports To

Product Design Lead

Product Designer Responsibilities

-Designing intuitive, user-friendly interfaces and interactions -Creating detailed designs from high-level concepts -Working with cross-functional teams to bring designs to life -Researching, planning, and conducting user research -Analyzing data and user feedback to inform design decisions -Staying up-to-date on latest trends and technologies

Product Designer Requirements & Skills

- Proven experience as a Product Designer or similar role

- Strong understanding of UX principles

- Portfolio of design projects

- Solid understanding of user-centered design principles

- Strong visual design skills

- Proficiency in Photoshop, Sketch, Illustrator, or other design tools