Perl Developer Job Description template

Perl Developer Job Description Template/Brief

As a Perl Developer, you will be working with the product team to develop and maintain software products. The Perl Developer will be responsible for developing code, troubleshooting issues, and providing support for existing products. They will also be required to participate in code reviews and write technical documentation.

Perl Developer Job Profile

A Perl developer is responsible for the development, maintenance, and support of web applications written in the Perl programming language. They work closely with web designers and other developers to create interactive and user-friendly websites. A Perl developer may also be responsible for writing code to support website functionality, developing new features, and troubleshooting issues.

Reports To

- Software Development Manager

Perl Developer Responsibilities

- Writing code to support website functionality
- Developing new features
- Troubleshooting issues
- Working closely with web designers and other developers
- Updating existing code
- Writing code to integrate with third-party applications
- Creating and maintaining technical documentation

Perl Developer Requirements & Skills

- Bachelor's degree in computer science or related field
- Experience with the Perl programming language
- Experience with databases such as MySQL, Oracle, or SQL Server
- Experience with HTML, CSS, and JavaScript
- Strong problem-solving and troubleshooting skills